Direct Primary Care:
The Future of Healthcare

WHAT IS DIRECT PRIMARY CARE?

Direct primary care (DPC) is a model of healthcare delivery that allows patients to have direct, ongoing, and comprehensive access to their primary care physician without the need for insurance. Patients pay a monthly or annual fee for access to services, which often includes office visits, phone or video consultations, and basic diagnostic testing. This eliminates the need for insurance reimbursement and reduces the administrative overhead associated with the traditional healthcare system, allowing for more personalized and cost-effective care.

Rewards of OUR cardholder Members

"Experience personalized, affordable healthcare with Direct Primary Care - Get more time with your doctor and fewer costs today!"

What do we mean by that?

Our members are prioritized and have state-of-the-art healthcare for less

Personalized care:

With a direct primary care membership, patients have direct access to their doctor and receive individualized, comprehensive care without the interference of insurance companies.

Increased access:

Direct primary care members have 24/7 access to their doctor via phone, email, or in-person appointments, reducing the time and stress associated with traditional healthcare.

Lower costs:

Direct primary care practices often operate on a subscription model, which eliminates the need for insurance and reduces the cost of healthcare for patients.

Prevention-focused:

Direct primary care practitioners focus on preventative care and wellness, helping patients avoid the development of more serious health problems and reducing long-term healthcare costs.

Improved doctor-patient relationships:

Direct primary care practices allow for more time for doctor-patient consultations, leading to stronger relationships and better health outcomes.
